

To Whom It May Concern,

Being in the media production industry, we depend on our IT system daily. It's vitally important that the system be fast and reliable and that the team behind the system be equally fast and reliable in their responses and solutions. That has been our experience with Heron since day one—a fact for which we're very grateful. Heron's technicians helped make the transition from our previous IT company as smooth and seamless as possible, keeping our projects on track and our team connected throughout. Along with the rest of the world, our new normal is in a constant state of adaptation and transition, making the dependability of Heron of even greater importance. With much of the Wrigley Media Group team working remotely, it is imperative that we stay connected for efficiency's sake. Thanks to Heron, even while the world deals with a global pandemic, we've been able to keep pace, execute our projects, and most importantly, keep our clients happy.

Sincerely,

David Cottingham
